

Reference (include title, author, journal title, year of publication, volume and issue, pages)	Evidence level (I-VII)	Key findings, outcomes or recommendations
Mardis T, Mardis M, Davis J, Justice EM, Holdinsky SR, Donnelly J, Ragozine-Bush H, Riesenber LA. Bedside Shift-to-Shift Handover. Journal of Nursing Care Quality 2016; 31(1):54-60	V	Benefits of bedside handover as related to staff and patient satisfaction More studies regarding patient safety outcomes as related to bedside handover
Johnson M, Jefferies D, Nicholls D. Exploring the structure and organisation of information within nursing clinical handovers. International Journal of Nursing Practice 2012; 18:462-470	VI	The benefits of a structured approach to group handover to help streamline the process and make sure critical information is conveyed
Thomas MJW, Schultz TJ, Hannaford N, Runcman WB. Failures in Transition: Learning from Incidents Relating to Clinical Handover in Acute Care. Houranl for Healthcare Quality 2013; 35(3): 49-56	VII	The importance of a standardised approach to handover to help ensure that critical information is transferred and patient safety is is not compromised
Moss S, Mitchell M, Thomson A, Piskor M, Biles C, Casey V. The key to improving clinical handover practices. Nursing Management 2017; 45-51	VI	Standardised approach (SBAR) to handover can lead to a decrease in adverse patient incidents and improve nursing engagement in the process
Pascoe H, Gill SD, Hughes A, McCall-White. Clinical handover: An audit form Australia. Australasian Medical Journal 2014 7(9): 363-371	VI	Importance of a structured and standardised approach to handover to ensure that necessary information is handed over without oversimplifying the process